Human Rights Internship in Argentina
June 15 – July 15, 2014

Overview
Explore and engage with the people and culture of Buenos Aires in this applied course and internship program. This educational opportunity will focus on various interdisciplinary topics including human rights abuses under military dictatorship, transitional justice in Argentina and elsewhere in Latin America, the codification of international human rights standards, and the relationship between socio-economic justice and human rights.

The course will be taught in English by Argentine activists, legal scholars, and academics. The lectures will be complimented with visits to important human rights sites in Buenos Aires, including ESMA, the Holocaust museum, various memorials, NGOs and other “sitios de memoria.” A relevant service learning experience will be arranged for each student with a local NGO or social service agency or provider.

In addition to the academic content, students will be exposed to the culture and beauty of Argentina through organized weekend excursions, including a traditional asado and gaucho show in San Antonio Areco, as well as kayaking in the Tigre river delta.
